Working for more than one year in the field of education, teaching English, German and Russian (as a foreign language), and working with students at all levels from Starter to Proficiency, we certainly consider our duty to help every student guiding each student to the right path in the study of foreign languages.

It should be noted that each level has its own characteristics, which we're going to talk about in this article. And so, let's start or, as the English say: "Let's get the ball rolling!"

The very first and the most important important-base level of any language is Starter! The most important for everyone who started to learn a language from the very beginning is to keep the system in training, to learn every new word and continue the learning process no matter what happens! We understand that at some point it may seem that you cannot master this wonderful but such a complicated language, but remember that next to you, there are wonderful specialists who is ready to help and these are your teachers.

Speaking of Elementary level, the most important thing is to overcome your fear and start speaking English! Speak as much as possible in English and forget the Russian language in English classes, and most importantly, do not be afraid to make a mistake, because you learn from their mistakes.

As for Pre-Intermediate level, remember that you must continue the work begun at the previous level and multiply it by speaking English. Nevertheless, do not forget about the expansion of your vocabulary e.g. learn the words and do not just learn them for a tick, but in order to use new words in your speech.

What about Intermediate level, let me remind you what you've already learned: you can speak and express your thoughts and do it well enough, but in fact you want to do this not just well, but even better, so you should read as much as possible in English! Read, discuss what you read and do not forget about the golden rule for foreign language learners, which extends to every level that is to learn each unknown word.

As for Upper-Intermediate level, you have already developed an excellent base of English words and expressions, learned the basic grammatical aspects of the English language, but it is not enough. In addition, this, of course, is great, because we have something to discuss with you. The most important thing for you now is to make your English speech perfect. To do this, you need to listen to English speech as much as possible (see the news of CNN and BBC, watch your favorite films and serials in English) and "decorate" your speech with all sorts of idioms and enduring expressions!

Speaking of Advanced level, it's time to learn how to "feel the language", and for this you should communicate as many as possible with English-speaking people, learn the nuances of English grammar, replenish your vocabulary with new expressions and idioms, and for this you need to prepare for each lesson cards with new words that you simply have to use in your speech during the whole class and read more.

To sum up, there are a lot of tricks how to learn English or any other language, but, in a nutshell, you must do your best, hone your pronunciation and keep up with all new information.
